Oct. 14, 2012
-------------------------------	--	--	--

October 14 , 2012 - Jak se maj! Hi everyone! Been another two weeks, so I think everyone can pretty much expect bi-weekly reports going forward... Seems to be my modus-operendi... Not sure why I didn't get an update done last week, but obviously I didn't... Probably Skipper's fault...

You're lucky you're getting one this week as The President "just" left the property... He stopped over to drop off my ladder and to discuss plans for the fall season... As always, he has a LOT of ideas. Can't wait... We're heading north in two weeks, but more on that later...

Been raining cats and dogs pretty much all weekend, so it's been kind of a blah two days off. Kinda off, as I've had a bit of work stuff going on, but that's life... But I think it can quit raining now... In fact, I'm ready for our Indian summer so I can get the bike out one more time. For the most part, it's been below that 50 degree mark that I require to ride, so I've only been out on it twice, for two quick rides, since I got it back. It's getting REALLY close to being time to store it, but I am hoping I get out at least one more time...

The FDA Chairman talked me into stopping over on Monday to make some "kraut". My swear arms are STILL sore... He did all the cutting (scares the CRAP outa me since the SEC-W/M nearly took his thumb off) but we shared pretty equally in the pounding. I'd guess he has about 10-12 gallons fermenting as we speak... Should be good stuff!!!

Last Sunday (THAT'S WHY I DIDN'T GET AN UPDATE DONE LAST WEEK!) we went out to celebrate the mayor's birthday. Hit the "townline" in Bellevue and had a nice meal and time... As always... I hope sis had a great birthday! Happy Belated Birthday Cindy!!!

Spent some time yesterday over at the SEC-Transportation's abode getting more computer work done. He "thinks" it's a pain for me, but his kids provide the entertainment, so I enjoy it... Hopefully everything is fixed, but I'm sure there will be more to do down the road...

Last weekend I did have a long weekend (took Friday off) and got some stuff done... Not a lot, but some... Finished my eaves trough on the wood shed behind the garage and got a project done for Skipper's boat to help it shed train better. Skipper and I hit the town Saturday night (not really, we were home by 11pm) and had a good time.

Football this fall has been interesting to say the least... Packers are blah, but I have high hopes for tonight. Badgers are blah, but on the road to improvement by the looks of yesterday's game. Denville? Well, the DID win another game, but they are pretty low on the radar... Kind of a bummer fall so far, but still entertaining...

Had two vehicles in the shop this week. The Chief's car got new shocks, and my trucks left back tire had this in it:

That's a 1/4" threaded bolt... It was driven into the tire and obviously caused a flat... Not cool, but luckily, it was fixable...

So with that good news, let's see what's to drink!

*15 UB40's Red Red Wine reached top of U.S. charts (1988). Suddenly drinking vino seemed kind of cool. Red, red wine.

*16 Oscar Wilde's Birthday (1854). "Work is the curse of the drinking classes."
Absinthe.*

*17 Anniversary of the First Oktoberfest (1810). Over a million gallons of beer were guzzled at Prince Ludwig's wedding. Beck's .

*18 Persons Day (Canada). Celebrates the day women were recognized as "persons." Pink Lady.

*19 Reptile Awareness Day. Hold your heads up high, lounge lizards. Rum and Coke.

*20 National Brandied Fruit Day. In a pinch, you can mix brandy with a can of fruit cocktail. You heard me.

*21 Anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar (1805). Grog guzzlers trounce the wine snobs. Navy Rum neat.

Hmmm... Not much of interest there... We'll have to go it on our own...

The President was over to discuss wood cutting the last weekend of the month. He reports that he is now planning on heading up Wednesday through Sunday. I hope to make it up Wednesday night or Thursday morning. Not sure who else is showing, but they should report up somewhere along the line. I CAN'T WAIT!!! I haven't been up there since I don't remember when, so I'm pretty fired up. Should be a great weekend of food, drink, and friends! But before that...

We have a big and busy week ahead!

Tomorrow is another sister birthday as the SEC-State's better half turns another page. We're heading out for Mexican to celebrate, so we should be having another great time. So if you see sister Cherie tomorrow (or anytime this week) be sure to wish her a great day! Happy Birthday Cherie!

Then on Friday the SEC-D'Fence is scheduled to tie the knot. Should be the last wedding of the year in the family so it should be another good one. He somehow found himself a fine girl and I wish them all the best! Good luck Casey and Nicole! (I hope to report on the festivities next week...)

Oh yeah, wanted to mention that Mr. Rick would have celebrated his birthday tomorrow too... We certainly do miss you Mr. Rick...

I think that's everything... Probably not, but I'm done for now... But before I go, here are a few words of wisdom for our junior members...

"A word to the wise ain't necessary, it's the stupid ones who need the advice." ~ BILL COSBY

Whoa! That's appropriate!

As Red would say, "Keep your stick on the ice"!
